

Platinum Jewelry Trends at the 63rd Primetime Emmy Awards

From Gwyneth Paltrow's stackable bracelets to Emily Blunt's cluster earrings, Hollywood's leading television actresses chose to celebrate their achievements with enduring platinum jewelry at the 63rd Primetime Emmy Awards. Platinum is naturally white, so it never changes color or fades, thereby maximizing the brilliance of diamonds and colored gemstones. It is the ideal setting for the red carpet, and all of life's most important moments.

Noticeable trends included stackable bracelets, colored gemstones, and diamond clusters or studs set in platinum.

Stackable Bracelets:

Gwyneth Paltrow chose black and white diamond stackable bracelets set in platinum by Neil Lane. Cat Deely and Mireille Enos also decided to layer platinum and diamond bracelets, to create ultimate sparkle on the red carpet!

Colored Gemstones:

Heidi Klum selected blackened platinum earrings with fire opal, amethyst, and colored diamonds, and matching rings by Lorraine Schwartz. Lea Michele and Gretchen Mol also opted to accessorize with colorful gemstones.

Diamond Studs or Cluster Earrings:

Emily Blunt's 10 carat diamond clusters by Lorraine Schwartz were dramatic yet sophisticated. Kerry Washington and Nina Dobrev took the classic approach by wearing diamond studs on the big day.
